SPECIALIST SECTORS

CLASS I MEDICAL DEVICES

Class I medical devices are the least regulated, with up to 95% of products in this category not being subjected to any regulatory controls. They include products such as bandages, stethoscopes, blood pressure monitors, dental amalgamators, examination gloves, Incision drapes, oxygen masks, patient hoists, scalpels.

CLASS II MEDICAL DEVICES

Class II medical devices make up the largest category, with the majority of medical devices falling into it. These include devices such as home pregnancy kits, nebulisers, x-ray machines, cryosurgery equipment, dental aspirator tips, ultrasound scanners, doppler blood flowmeters, electrocardiograph (ECG) and feeding pumps.

CLASS III MEDICAL DEVICES

Class III medical devices are those that are considered high-risk and could potentially present harm to the end user if not used properly. Devices in this category include products such as replacement heart valves, implanted pacemakers, breast implants, hip implants, infant incubators, bone cement and surgical lasers.
